SUMMARY OF EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK

CANADIAN

The price of wheat at the beginning of the week was $1.36. C.P.R. stock stood at 143.

A Canadian aviator, Major J. Sussan, is one of the leaders of the foreign flying men who are fighting with the French against the Riffs in Morocco.

The provincial by-election in Medicine Hat is in full blast. Mr. A. A. McGillivray, the new Conservative leader, is taking a very prominent part in the election. Polling day is September 29. This by-election is of rather special interest as it may give a clue to what the chances of the three rival parties will be at the next general election. Mr. Greenfield, the premier, speaking on behalf of the Labor candidate, claimed for his government that it is not a party government but a business one only.

The leaders of the dominion political parties have opened the contest with long speeches in which they have laid down what they consider to be the issues of the election. These issues are referred to elsewhere in this number of "The News." Several progressive members, including Mr. J. T. Shaw, the member for West Calgary, are not to stand again in this election.

The latest estimate of the Canadian wheat crop for this year is 391 million bushels. Last year's crop was 262 million bushels.

A party of 112 Russians of the anti-Bolshevist party have reached Canada from China, and are to settle in Alberta and British Columbia.

The C.P.R. has applied to the Railway Commission for a suspension of the recent order for the lowering of west-bound grain rates until the whole board has heard the case. The order was made by only two out of the five members of the board.

A great storm visited Montreal on Saturday morning and did much damage, destroying houses, trees and telephone and telegraph lines, but there seems to have been only one life lost.

Premier Mackenzie King is expected to speak in Alberta in the course of the next few weeks in support of the Liberal election campaign.

A wireless message has been received from the Hudson's Bay Company steamer Baychimo, now in the western Arctic ocean, that she is imprisoned in the ice near Herschel Island, with her side stove in and leaking badly. It is said to be quite impossible for any rescue ship to reach the Baychimo, but the crew will most probably be able to escape to land over the ice.

Mr. Meighen, leader of the opposition, is expected to speak on election issues in Alberta in the first ten days of October. He is expected in Edmonton on October 3 and in Calgary on October 9, visiting British Columbia in the interval.

Mr. E. W. Beatty, president of the C.P.R., is expected in Edmonton today and it is stated that he is to have a conference with Premier Greenfield and Hon. Vernon Smith, Alberta minister of railways, as to the E.D. & B.C. Railway. The rumor is that the government is asking the C.P.R. to make an offer for the railway.

Mr. Forke, leader of the Progressive party in Canada, has, as yet, made no statement as to the Progressive plans for the election, but he is expected to issue such statement to the press this week.

BRITISH AND IMPERIAL

Forty acres of land in the west-end of London have been sold by Lord Howard de Walden for more than 20 million dollars.

At Rotherham in England last week Princess Mary and her husband, Lord Lascelles, were about to open a hospital when a crowd of Communists gathered with the open intention of hooting them. The rest of the people learning what was intended, attacked the Communists, dispersed them and tore up their red flags.

King Feisal of Irak, or Mesopotamia, is in London conferring with the British government as to the British protectorate over Irak. Under the existing agreement this protectorate is supposed to come to an end in less than four years' time, when it was expected that Irak could stand by itself without British help, but owing to the dispute with Turkey regarding Mosul, the frontier province of Irak, it is now uncertain whether the protectorate can be brought to an end so soon, as it is feared that Turkey may attack Irak if British protection is withdrawn. On the other hand, the Arab people of Irak are inclined to resent even the shadow of British domination, while willing enough to appeal for British aid against the Turks. In Britain itself there is a strong feeling against spending money and lives in Mesopotamia under any circumstances.

At the British Labor Congress in Scarboro the extremist proposal for the creation of one big union was heavily defeated and the moderate party also succeeded in defeating the proposal to give dictatorial powers to the Trades Union Council in case of a strike.

Lord Byng, governor-general of Canada, celebrated his sixty-third birthday last Friday.

The Prince of Wales has been having an exciting time among the gauchos or cowboys of the Argentine, where he took part in various sports. He is now in Chili.

A controversy has arisen in the British group of the inter-parliamentary union with respect to the members who are to go to the congress in Ottawa and Washington. Colonel Wedgwood, Labor member, has declared that he will not go unless he is allowed to visit Soviet Russia, but Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign minister, has refused to allow him to do so.

FOREIGN

A great meeting of Russian exiles from all over the world is planned for November in Paris, where it is expected that an attempt will be made to arrange another attack on the Bolshevist government of Russia. The Grand Duke Nicholas is expected to lead the movement. There have been other similar attempts in the past, but they have always failed through the selfish incompetence and corruption of the minor officers concerned.

Heavy hand-to-hand fighting is going on in Northern Morocco between the Spaniards and the Riffs. The Spaniards are reported to be making some slight progress.

In Morocco the French and Spaniards have landed a Spanish army in Alhucemas Bay under cover of a heavy bombardment from over 100 warships, while on the southern front a great French attack has been opened. An artillery bombardment covered a front of 45 miles and appears to have been entirely successful, the enemy positions having been taken with ease. As September is the last month of the year in which campaigning is possible in the Moorish mountains owing to tremendous rains and the absense of roads, it is evident that the French are making a great effort to crush the Riffs by overwhelming force before winter can halt operations.

A great typhoon has caused severe damage in Japan and Korea. It was followed by a tidal wave which destroyed a number of houses and wrecked many small boats. The typhoon did a certain amount of damage in Japan also.

It is reported that Captain Amundsen, who recently made an attempt to reach the North Pole by air, which so nearly ended in disaster, will make another flight next year in an Italian aeroplane.

The five United States naval airmen, whose plane came down on the sea while on the flight from San Francisco to Honolulu and who had been given up as lost, have been saved. A submarine picked them up after they and their plane had been floating for nine days on the sea, and they were taken along with the plane to the Hawaii Islands.

The air squadron of American and Canadian flying men is reported to have carried out very destructive raids on Shesshan, one of the chief towns of the Riff country.

ALHAMBRA NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Luyckfasseel, with their young sons, Norman and Lester, have returned from Edmonton. Mrs. Luyckfasseel and the children are remaining on the farm, while Pete has joined the ranks of the harvesters down south.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira B. Schilling are rejoicing in the birth of a son.

Quite a number of Alhambra residents interested in the work of the school children were present at the school fair held in Leslieville September 8. Our boys and girls had a very creditable showing in almost all the departments, and this should prove an incentive to more pupils entering in next year's fair. We notice that in the essay competition, two firsts and one second were secured by Alhambra.

Mrs. W. E. Gould expects her mother and sister out from England about the end of this month. We hope they will like this country sufficiently well to make this their permanent home.

The recent rains have proved a serious hindrance to harvesting operations.

We shall have to have a vigorous brushing up on political matters in order to record our vote sensibly on October 29.

The school children are once more at the ordinary routine of work. So far, 35 pupils are enrolled with Miss Wilma Clark as teacher. Miss Alma Clark has charge of Little Horsegaard school, we believe.

THE NEW RECTOR

Rev. W. J. Merrick, M.A., rector of Christ Church, Macleod, has been appointed by the Bishop of Calgary to succeed Rev. G. McComas as rector of St. Luke's, Red Deer, in consequence of the latter's resignation. Mr. McComas will go to Macleod. The change of pulpits will most likely take place towards the end of October.

H. P. Woodcock, a Conservative member, has refused to go if Mr. Saklatvala, the Hindu Communist member for one of the London constituencies, is included in the party, but the majority of the members do not support Colonel Woodcock's attitude.

Sir James Craig, premier of Northern Ireland, has stated publicly that his government has not changed its attitude on the boundary question and that the boundary commission is still working behind closed doors.

Sixty-two striking seamen have been sentenced to imprisonment and fine in Australia for disobeying orders. The seamen's strike has practically collapsed in England.

It is rumored that the Turks are massing troops on the frontier of Mosul in anticipation of the League of Nations deciding against their claim to the district. It has always been extremely doubtful if they would accept an adverse decision, and if this report is correct, it illustrates once again the limitations in the value of League of Nations arbitration proceedings.

Sir John Jordan, formerly British ambassador in China, is dead. He was a sincere friend of the Chinese and always opposed anything like a policy of European encroachments on Chinese independence, while at the same time he fully realized the incompetence of the present Chinese leaders and the disastrous anarchy into which they have plunged China. No fresh news has come from China in the last week.

Dr. Clark Will Not Be a Candidate

"The News" has received authority directly from Dr. Clark himself to announce that under no circumstances will he be a candidate at the coming election. The announcements made in other papers that he was going to stand are inaccurate and without foundation.

THE CITY COUNCIL

The City Council held its regular meeting on Monday evening. Mayor Johns presided and Aldermen Broughton, Fulton, Galbraith, Howlett and McClure and Commissioner Stephenson were present.

A letter was read from the Board of Public Utilities asking whether any progress had been made by the municipal district of Pine Lake in clearing up the points raised by the board in connection with the cancellation of subdivisions to the east of the city. No progress has yet been reported.

The Manning-Sutherland Co. wrote to say that they found they were unable to supply the Michel coal for which their tender had been submitted, the sole agency in the city for such coal being in the hands of the Atlas Lumber Co. Some discussion followed on this matter. Alderman Broughton considered that Michel coal was distinctly the best kind. Fire Chief Taylor was called in and questioned as to the relative qualities of Michel coal and McGillivray Creek coal. His opinion was in favor of the Michel coal. Alderman Galbraith was inclined to resent the council being bound to take its coal from one agent only but was not clear as to the alternative and did not press his objection. It was decided to order a car of Michel coal from the Atlas Lumber Co.

John Batle wrote asking for a refund of the business tax ($24.00) paid by him in 1921, on the ground that he then had no place of business in town. There seemed to be some doubt as to whether or not Mr. Batle's house could be regarded as a place of business. It was left to the commissioner to make further inquiries of Mr. Batle as to the matter.

R. B. Owens, provincial health officer, wrote enclosing a copy of the report as to sanitary conditions in the city made by Inspector J. Williams. This was generally favorable. A recommendation was made that the city should not allow live chickens to be kept in the basement of premises where food was kept which was intended for sale to the public. A by-law to that effect was recommended. H. D. Cone, chairman of the city health board, supported the by-law proposal but wished it to be framed so as to inflict the least possible hardship on citizens.

A letter from C. Austin and Co., Seattle, was read suggesting that they be entrusted with the holding of an auction sale of lands which have reverted to the city for taxes. This was not considered desirable.

"Municipal Canada" publishers wrote offering to print for nothing a photograph of Red Deer but it was thought to be now too late to send such.

James E. Miller attended and addressed the council re to his taxes. He explained that he had been overseas during the war for three years doing work on big guns. He was paid at the rate of only 9½d. per hour, and was not allowed to work on a piece-work basis, thereby being unable to make the high wages the unskilled munition workers made. He had tried to enlist but had been rejected as physically unfit owing to his sight. On his return he had been unable to clear off all his taxes accumulated in his absence, though he had kept on making payments on account. He asked that the penalties he had paid in re-

1,000 ACRES IN SUGAR BEETS

Arrangements may be made for the planting next spring of 1,000 acres of sugar beets in Manitoba, according to Michael Scott, who is secretary of the Manitoba Sugar Company, Limited. This firm has been making extensive experiments in the growing of sugar beets in Manitoba.

SYLVAN LAKE

Dr. W. W. Nasmyth is spending this week on a business trip to Calgary.

The children of Sylvan Lake Sunday school and their friends had a very pleasant gathering on the grounds of the church Saturday afternoon when the annual Sunday school picnic, postponed from Labor Day, was held. Games took up the first interval of the afternoon and then a series of sports was held. Messrs. Steele, Pauly, Holdsworth and MacKay were in charge. The ladies of the school, Mesdames McCaskill, McCrimmon, Steele, Falkner, Dingwall Holdsworth, Duffield and Soberg served a luncheon that tickled the fancy of young and old. Every child whose attendance had checked up as fairly regular was given a memento of the occasion.

A prospective change in the ownership of the White Lunch, operated by Mr. Norris Jones, is taking place this week-end and will be further reported in the next issue of this paper.

Despite the weather preceding last Thursday and the condition of the roads, Sylvan Lake school fair maintained its well earned reputation as one of the very best school fairs in the province. The judges this year were P.S. Inspector Gibson, Messrs. Holston, Craig, Mrs. Kemp and Miss Edith Yauch of the Olds School of Agriculture. This year a particularly good showing was made in the beef class. A nice bunch of Angus calves were shown. Very heavy entries were received in the girls' work department. Mrs. Gill completed her second year as a very efficient secretary. The board of directors were: President A. Faucher, Vice-Presidents H. H. Jamieson, Messrs. Fred Nelson, Carritt; Harry Pickering, Durham; Peter Walters, Norma; August Johnson, Marianne; T. Sigurdson, Pine Hill; N. Halverson, Swan Lake; John E. Smith, Sylvan Lake.

Farmers report that if the present dry spell is maintained they will be back to harvesting operations by the end of the week.

A gentleman from Salt Lake City has been looking over the ground in this district with a possibility of establishing a sugar beet industry.

Mr. Olesburg returned last Friday after spending a week at his home in Bawif.

Messrs. Wright and Quilto, evangelists, recently of Rocky Mountain House, have started a series of meetings in the K.P. Hall. Their first service last Sunday evening was very well attended. Meetings will be held every evening with the exception of Tuesday and Saturday evenings for several weeks.

Mrs. Aleck Pirie of Calgary is a visitor to town to attend the Jamieson-Slack wedding. Other visitors to town in connection with this popular event are Mrs. James McKechnie and Miss Jean McKechnie of Rocky; Mr. and Mrs. McKinnon, Leslieville; Mr. Neely, Killam, and Mrs. Tattersall, Slocan City, B.C.

Mr. Herbert and his novelty orchestra will give a dance in the Sylvan Lake Hotel dance hall on Saturday evening, September 19.

Guests registered at the Sylvan Lake Hotel in the past few days included Mrs. D. A. Burger, H. H. Motley, Wm. Hammond, Calgary; D. B. Gainley, Innisfail; Grant Holeton, A. T. Kemp, Herbert Craig, Miss Edith Yauch, Olds; A. R. Gibson, C. A. Ayling, Red Deer; A. S. Rutherford, Drew Wilson, Camrose; E. Officer, Edmonton.

The events of the week was the popular wedding on Monday of Mr. W. G. Jamieson of Delburne and Mrs. Annie Slack of Sylvan Lake. The ceremony was performed at the Presbyterian manse by Rev. Mr. Johnston, Rev. Mr. McKechnie officiating. The church was handsomely decorated for the occasion with flowers and plants in great profusion. Mrs. Slack was beautifully gowned in mauve with pearl trimmings, and carried an arm bouquet of roses, carnations and asters. The bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, Mr. Neely of Killam, Alberta. She was unattended during the ceremony. The groom was supported by his brother, D. A. Jamieson. While the bridal party was forming at the altar, Miss Elsie McKee of Benalto played the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin. The ceremony as conducted by Mr. McKechnie was beautiful throughout. The church was completely filled by friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The wedding party then proceeded to Kensington Camp, where the luncheon was served to about 30 relatives and friends, the usual "sentiments" being given and responded to. Late in the afternoon Mr. H. H. Jamieson of Sylvan Lake motored the happy couple to their new home at Delburne.

The wet weather and bad roads put a heavy check on motor traffic but the last few days has seen something of a revival, George Dancock's service station on Gaetz Avenue having been kept quite busy. The trains passing through town have had fewer passengers than usual and business generally has been rather depressed on account of the weather.

Two large metal refuse containers have been put in place beside each door of the post office. The object is to prevent the grounds being constantly littered with discarded envelopes, circulars and other bits of paper by people leaving the post office. It is hoped that the public generally will make use of these containers and so help Mr. Bearcheil, the caretaker, to keep the post office and its grounds neat and tidy in appearance. It is a pity that Mr. Bearchell cannot persuade the dominion government to remove the local eyesore in the form of the hole in the ground. Possibly the election may furnish an opportunity for putting pressure on candidates to put pressure in turn on the government.

Jack Munro was standing at the door of his house the other evening enjoying the cool air when a friend came along and stopped to chat. While they were thus engaged, a strange noise resulted them out of doors screaming in mortal anguish. It appeared to come from some house near by and for a few moments the two listeners were uncertain as to whether or not some dreadful tragedy was in course of enactment. However, it gradually dawned on them that it was a gramaphone and then the question arose what on earth it was playing. One of the two actually suggested it was the bagpipes and, absard almost to the verge of blasphemy as the suggestion was, they decided to go and investigate. On trailing the sound to its source they found that it was a Chinese record being played by an exiled Celestial in whose ears in no doubt had all the sad beauty of "Home, Sweet Home." The bagpipes indeed! This story is almost as objectionable as the one which a beautiful young lady—who should have known better—repeated a couple of days ago about a Scotsman who, being compelled to send a wedding present to a friend, sent it in the shape of a handsome pair of homing pigeons from his own loft.

Covered Rink Practically Assured

PENHOLD

Mr. J. Mann of Victoria is visiting his son Harry.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Houston spent a few days with Mrs. Houston's parents before going home. They have rooms with Mrs. Martin Sr. of Red Deer.

Miss Hope spent the week-end in Red Deer.

There will be a celebration of holy communion in the Anglican Church on Sunday at 3:15 p.m.

There will be no regular meeting of the Women's Institute this month as most of the members wish to attend the constituency convention at Innisfail on September 28 instead.

Ken Simpson has closed the boathouse at Sylvan Lake and is back at school.

Mr. Sharman spent Sunday in Calgary.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Main of Drumheller have come to live with the latter's parents and Mr. Main will help on the farm.

The Penhold scribe picked a small handful of raspberries beside the track on Sunday.

Two more threshing outfits were unloaded last week. It looks as if this district has a wonderful crop.

Mr. James Johnson is moving into the manse in the near future.

The Bank of Montreal will give Penhold a three-day service this winter by coming on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. McKinnon of Clearview visited Mr. and Mrs. Grier on Sunday.

Our junior room made a good standing at the school fair and with sewing and cooking might have won out. As the awards are nearly all for junior or public school pupils, would it not be better just to enter the lower room from Penhold? It makes an altogether wrong impression to see our standing in the upper room, where the high school grades are taken.

THE WEATHER

The weather in the latter part of last week was deplorable, heavy chill rain falling and causing great anxiety and some loss to the farmers. It cleared on Saturday and has been fine since on the whole, but there have been several showers, quite heavy in some places near Red Deer, while on Monday a bad hail storm passed over an area from Hespero southeast to Penhold, Innisfail and Pine Lake, which did damage of a more or less serious kind. The grain has fallen heavily in the last day or two, which would seem to indicate that the weather is not yet settled.

LOCAL SUGGESTIONS

It is suggested that it would be a good idea for someone to open a small restaurant or lunch counter beside the C.N.R. station for the benefit of passengers travelling by the C.N.R trains. Even if it was open for only an hour or two each day, about the time of trains arriving and leaving, it would be a distinct convenience.

Mr. McLean will be a desirable addition to the city's professional ranks.

The Horticultural Society's tea and sale of flowers held last Saturday was very successful, the results being wholly satisfactory. Over $20.00 was made from the flowers alone and about $33.00 in all was cleared. The flowers were exceedingly good, possibly even better than those shown at the society's recent annual show. Special acknowledgement should be made of two large boxes of dahlias and sweet peas received from Camrose through Mr. Frank Farley, which were very beautiful and sold well, as they deserved to.

Public Meeting Approves Plans and Gets Funds off to a Good Start

A fairly well attended public meeting was held in the City Hall on Friday evening for the purpose of arriving at some plan for the erection of a covered rink for this winter. W. E. Lord was elected chairman, with F. Turnbull acting as secretary.

Various plans and specifications were on hand and were handed around for inspection, those of the High River rink being looked upon with favor as being more suitable for Red Deer.

The chairman brought the meeting to order and then called upon W. E. Payne to explain the aims and objects of the meeting. W. E. Payne stated that the real object of the evening was to get down to some basis on which they could work for the purpose of providing a covered skating rink. Everyone in the city realized the necessity of such a building. It would not only provide greater comfort for players and spectators alike in the hockey and skating season, but would be a distinct asset to the community, as it could be utilized in many ways during the rest of the year, for public meetings, carnivals, etc. The great factor in building such a rink was finance. The rink which was in view would cost about $10,000 or so to build; the Elks Club and the Rotary Club had each donated $2,000, giving the project a good start; the balance would have to be got by public subscription. The articles of constitution had been drawn up (the speaker here read the chief points) and it was proposed to capitalize the company at $15,000, being divided into 1,500 shares at $10.00 each, half to be paid on October 1 and the balance on December 1. The subscription list would be opened that evening and the town would be well canvassed during the next few days. If the necessary money was guaranteed the committee would go ahead at once with the scheme. He appealed to those present to subscribe all they could. It would not be guaranteed as to paying dividends, although there might be a possibility of it doing so, but it was more in the nature of a community project for the benefit of all.

Letters were read by the secretary regarding the plans submitted and these were explained.

A motion was brought forward by Messrs. W. E. Payne and J. Fulton "that the committee appointed have their time extended to Wednesday so that they could consider the various propositions and report back to the organization." An amendment to this was moved by Messrs. Hogg and Long "that the plan of the High River rink be accepted." The amendment was carried.

On a motion by Dr. Long it was decided that the name of the company be "The Red Deer Rink Co., Ltd."

The subscription list was then opened and in a very short time 226 shares were subscribed for, this total now standing at $6,260, which is a splendid start and there should be no difficulty in obtaining the rest of the money.

The proposed rink will be situated on the south side of Ross Street, leased at a nominal rental from the city, somewhere about the location of the old open-air rink. It will have an ice surface of 80x180 feet, seating accommodation for approximately 1,000 and will contain up-to-date dressing rooms and club rooms.

When the necessary funds have been guaranteed, a meeting of the shareholders will be called and the directors and officers of the new company elected.

The canvassing committee are doing their best to see everybody in town; in case there should be any who have been overlooked, subscriptions may be handed in to any of the following: W. E. Payne, F. Turnbull or E. S. Hogg.

GALLANT RESCUE BY SOLDIERS

The following appears in Calgary district orders of recent date:

Acts of gallantry were performed at Sarcee Camp, near Calgary, on Wednesday, August 12, 1925.

While bathing in the Elbow River, No. 2339, Trooper W H. Bussel, L.S.H. (R.C.), got into difficulties and but for the gallant action of certain personnel this man would have lost his life by drowning.

Lt. Col. W. G. Beeman, D.S.O., R.C.A., rushed some distance to the scene and, fully clothed, dived into the water. No. 2875 Trooper F. W. M. Brooks, L.S.H. (R.C.), succeeded in bringing Tpr. Bussel to the surface after diving for him and, assisted by Lt. Col. Beeman, No. 2870 Trooper E. S. Pantridge, L.S.H. (R.C.), and No. 2687 Lance Corporal W. Sadler, L.S.H. (R.C.), the unconscious body of Tpr. Bussel was brought to the shore. There Lt. Col. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., D.S.O., M.C., A.D.C., P.P.C.L.I., carried out artificial respiration, and assisted by Capt. W. G. Colquhoun, M.C., P.P.C.L.I., and Corporal W. Sadler, L.S.H. (R.C.), succeeded in resuscitating the near-lifeless body of Tpr. Bussel, who was later removed to camp hospital and fully recovered.

A court of inquiry was convened to investigate the incident. The camp commandant, in forwarding the proceedings, has brought especially to the notice of the district officer commanding these acts of gallantry performed by Lt. Col. W. G. Beeman, D.S.O., R.C.A., No. 2687 Lance Corporal W. Sadler, L.S.H. (R.C.), and No. 2875 Tpr. F. W. M. Brooks.

The district officer commanding highly commends all concerned.

SHOOTING SEASON OPENS

The shooting season opened yesterday when the ducks were the victims. Local hunters who have been awaiting "the day" were to be seen setting forth in large numbers, fully equipped with the necessaries. Several parties from outside points also journeyed through town, all bound for the hunting grounde.

COMPLIMENTARY

The curate was passing down the village street when he encountered two boys fighting. He promptly seized the tallest one by the collar and said to him, "What are you two fighting about?"

"We were fighting about you," the boy replied. "Sammy Jones said you hadn't the brains of a hen, and I said you had."

HILLSDOWN VALLEY W.I.

The Hillsdown Valley W.I. met with Mrs. E. S. Janssen at the home of Mrs. W. E. Janssen. Members present, 14, guests, three.

Letters were read from Mrs. MacDougall, from the Department of Public Health, offering to send a speaker on different health subjects; from our president, outlining a scheme for training emergency domestic helpers. The offer from the government department was accepted and Child Welfare was the subject chosen.

Mrs. Tallman read a very interesting paper on the proposed Parlby bill. This was followed by a general discussion of the paper. The following resolution was unanimously passed: "We, the members of the Hillsdown Valley W.I., wish to record a protest against the proposed Parlby bill. We consider it detrimental to the interests of women generally and believe the existing property laws of Alberta to be more just and equitable." The secretary was instructed to send copies of this resolution to the papers, to our M.P. and to Mrs. Parlby.

Plans were discussed for a play to be given by the W.I.

Mr. A. Speakman, M.P., and the Naval Question

Editor "The News," Red Deer, Alberta.

I read with interest, in the last issue of your paper, a series of questions addressed to myself under the caption, "Mr. A. Speakman and the Naval Question," and having been, by the courtesy of the editor, furnished with an advance copy of same, I am glad to respond by making clear my position on this subject.

Let me indicate at the outset, however, that the question might be considered at the present time as purely academic, inasmuch as no party leader has as yet expressed himself upon the subject nor raised it as an issue in this campaign.

In my opinion, Canada should not, at present at least, enter upon a naval program, either directly, by the construction of a Canadian navy, nor indirectly by way of contribution toward an Imperial fleet.

From the financial point of view alone such a policy would be impracticable. The crying need of the moment is to reduce our national indebtedness and to lower our rate of taxation, not to embark upon a program which would inevitably increase both, more particularly as the expenditure might easily be wasted in whole or in part.

Our hopes that the Great War might be the last may be doomed to disappointment, but it is not too much to believe that the lesson then taught, that war benefits no one but injures all, may at least deter the nations from conflict on a scale for many years to come, in which case any vessels constructed in the near future would be hopelessly antiquated long before any occasion for their use arose.

It must be remembered also that while we have reason to hope that Canada is at least beginning to emerge from the financial morass in which she is at present involved, we are already committed to many large and costly undertakings, in connection with the St. Lawrence Waterways, the Welland Canal and other projects, which will strain our resources and impose heavy burdens upon our people for many years to come, to say, nothing of the demand for rural credits and other beneficial measures which, while sorely needed, will undoubtedly during the primary stages of their conception impose additional obligations upon the credit of our country.

It would not be expected, by even the most enthusiastic supporter of your suggestions, that Canada with her present means and population could build or maintain an effective naval force, the only kind for which there could be the slightest justification, therefore such vessels must operate as part of an Imperial fleet.

Apart from every other consideration such a cause would not receive my support while, as at the present time, we have no effective voice in the foreign policies which might necessitate the use of such a fleet.

In addition, I do not believe it wise for Canada to enter upon or take part in a competitive war of armaments which would be the obvious result of such a policy as is suggested, and which was in my opinion one of the direct causes of the late war.

As to the analogy which is drawn as between Canada on the one hand and Australia or Scotland on the other, the cases are hardly parallel, particularly in regard to Scotland, which, as an integral part of Great Britain, has representation in her Parliament and is not, as in our case, a separate and self-governing dominion.

In view of the part which Canada has played in past wars, it can hardly be charged that the abstention by us, from taking part in naval development, would indicate any desire to evade a full share in Imperial defence in time of need.

As to the other question raised, that of Oriental immigration, I believe that only those should be admitted for permanent settlement who may suitably intermarry with our Canadians here, with the view of developing in the future a united race. I should therefore restrict immigration from the Orient to those who enter for educational purposes, the promotion of international trade and kindred objects which would be mutually beneficial.

The right of this, or any nation, to enact such restrictive legislation, already in force in most countries, including Japan, has never been challenged and does not in my opinion constitute a reason for maintaining an armed force.

At this time, when every civilized nation is straining toward the goal of universal peace, when, by conference and negotiation, every effort is being made to limit, rather than increase, armaments, and to establish a League of Nations and a World's Court of Justice before which our international disputes may be settled by reason and by arbitration, rather than by war, I conceive it to be a most inopportune moment for Canada to embark upon such an undertaking as is suggested in your columns.

ALFRED SPEAKMAN.

NO. 2 PACK WOLF CUBS

The pack held their usual weekly meeting on Tuesday last in the Armoury. The first part of the meeting was devoted to hearing from the Cubs all about the different places they had visited during their vacation. Teddy Graham and Ernest Nicholls, who went further afield than the others, will each prepare a paper covering their travels and read it to the pack.

The last half-hour was spent in taking names for the special athletic class and to putting those selected through the preliminary exercises.

Boys selected from both packs will be trained for an athletic display to be given some time in December.

Boys who join this class have to promise to attend the practices and to practice at home the exercises set by the instructor.

Parents of those boys are asked to kindly encourage their boys to attain efficiency.

This class will meet in the Armoury each Wednesday afternoon directly after leaving school and will practice for half-an-hour.

R. C. LISTER, Cubmaster.

NO. 1 TROOP SCOUTS

Last Friday our first meeting for the season started with a whoop. The whoop was supplied by the ten new members. They have already beaten the old members of the troop in their boasted ability as noise-makers. The present strength of the troop is 33, and more are expected. Next week two new patrols and two new leaders will be created, and their bird or animal names published freely. It will mean two more branches of natural history added to the present troop museum.

First, some games were played, just to loosen the boys up for the work to follow. The new members showed great promise in these, and are hogs for punishment. In one game, in which a person, not handled with care, is tossed down between two ranks of boys, an unusual case came to the front. One small boy was being roughly handled in such a manner when suddenly, by dint of a superior shove from two new fellows, he upended and came down on the unyielding turf on his head. The troop first-aiders rushed to the spot to collect the pieces but, much to their astonishment, the small youth rose unaided to his feet, pointed to a hole his head had made in the ground, and went on calmly with the game. "And there," said our scoutmaster in worried tones, "is one of the boys through whose head we have to pound Scout work. Someone please bring a sledgehammer down here."

The work consisted of thoroughly cleaning the shack. A tramp had graciously partaken of our hospitality during our summer absence and seemingly had occupied the shack for some time. In return for the use of the building he left behind him one very ancient hat, a vest of some historic period, one shoe, three or four dozen tin cans, five tons of dirt and also generously rearranged the furniture to suit his more artistic taste. It was suggested that we put up another shack near our present one with a notice outside to this effect: "Tramps, bums and other gentlemen kindly use this hotel, as the other one is closed for repairs."

Later on, when we had remodeled the place to suit our more humble tastes, the boys collected in a ring around the stove and listened to the welcome words of the scoutmaster. He outlined the scout work for the coming season and a general powwow ensued. After quiet had been reluctantly restored again, some proficiency badges were handed out to a choice few. In presenting two laundryman badges, the two boys were given the choice of keeping the badge and washing the shirts and shorts of the entire troop at our next camp or handing back the badge. They are still undecided. The scoutmaster, in presenting a camp cook badge, unkindly pointed to the winner's dog and asked: "You've been trying your cooking on him, haven't you? So I thought; that's why he looks so bad. Poor doggie."

Next meeting promises to be a top event. Anybody coming without a stave will be promptly chucked in the river. Anybody coming without bare knees showing will lose their shoes and stockings and will be chased home through all the rose bushes possible. Anybody coming without a smile will suffer both previous punishments, and will be shot at—remember, we said shot at—by the archer patrol leader of the owls. They are safe in the last case.

We are pleased to announce a Lone Scout addition to our troop from the wilds of the East Bridge. This worthy comes equipped with the dignified name of James. It doesn't suit. Therefore, from now on he will be known to all as Wow. The only reason given is that he is one.

NO. 1 PACK WOLF CUBS

We don't say much but we are still on the map. Our weekly meetings have been carried on all summer over by the old creamery where we have our council rock, but last Tuesday we returned to our hut on Third Street North, having said good-bye to three of our number, Pack Leader Tom Cornett, Sixer Art Coghlin and Cub Kendal Fee, who, having reached the age limit, pass through to the larger brotherhood and are now attached to No. 1 troop of Scouts. So it goes—we lose and they gain. Tommy had been with us for over three years. At the meeting on Tuesday we formed two new Sixes with Dug Stephenson and Del Goghlin as Sixers; another Six will be made as soon as possible. We also welcomed two more to the pack, Cyril Carscadden and Jack Marson. This session we are out for real Cubbing. A Six competition starts in October for three months, terminating at our annual New Year's eve reunion when the "Good Turn Ball" is to be unwound. We can still take a few more boys in the pack, so if you want to join come along with one of the Sixers on Tuesday night.

The Stettler Golf Club are holding their second annual tournament on Thursday and Friday, September 17 and 18. The entry fee is $2.00 and the club will welcome outside entries. Perhaps some of our Red Deer warriors can smite the Stettler Philistines in their own encampment.

James Stewart, son of that doughty Scotsman, Andy Stewart of Evarts, has been winning laurels on the running track in British Columbia. At Revelstoke Labor Day sports he won the 100 yards and 220 yards championship of interior British Columbia. The official time in the 100 yards was 10 2-5 seconds, though several watches made it 10 1-5. The time for the 220 yards was 24 seconds. The former title holder, Micky McMahon, was second. This is a highly creditable performance and James reserves the congratulations of the Red Deer district athletes.

Calgary and Edmonton each won one match in the inter-city cricket tournament. Edmonton won its game by 156 to 139 and Calgary won the return game by 129 to 110.

Fernie won the amateur baseball championship of Alberta by defeating Edmonton in a double-header in the capital city on Saturday. Blair did the iron-man stunt for Fernie, striking out no less than 26 men in the two games. The scores were 4 to 1 and 2 to 1.

America won the world's tennis championship on Saturday when their stars defeated the French representatives in hard-fought games.

In British football the new offside rule seems to be leading to very heavy scoring. Blackburn Rovers beat Newcastle United at Newcastle by 7 to 1, and in Scotland Queen's Park beat Dundee by no fewer than 10 to 2. The defeat of the Rangers by Airdrieonians by 2 to 1 on the Saturday before last and by Aberdeen by 3 to 1 forms the most notable feature of the Scottish football season so far. It must be a long time since the famous Rangers lost two league matches in succession. Their great rivals, the Celtic, on the other hand, seem to be playing better than last season.

C.N.R. SECTION FOREMAN KILLED

Near Saunders by Being Thrown From a Speeder in Collison With Cow

Dominic Augustine, Canadian National section foreman at Lamoral, was returning from Labor Day sports at Nordegg on Monday night about 11 o'clock, when the speeder ran into a cow in the darkness close to Saunders and he and his companion were thrown from the speeder. His companion went down the bank with the speeder, and escaped with minor injuries, but Mr. Augustine was thrown forward and struck either a rail or a tie, his skull being crushed in over the right eye. His companion finally managed to get the car righted and on the track and to get Augustine on to the speeder. He seemed alive then, but when they got to Lamoral he was dead. His wife lives in Italy. The Coroner decided that an inquest was not necessary. The cow was not seriously injured.

HELP!

The train was racing along at about 60 miles an hour, and Brown was snoozing in a corner of his compartment when he was disturbed by a fellow passenger rushing along the corridor.

"Excuse me," gasped this excited individual, "but is your wife a rather stout lady wearing a brown costume and a red hat?"

"Yes," replied the astonished Brown. "What's all the excitement about?"

"Excitement!" exclaimed the unknown passenger. "The excitement is that she's just fallen out of the train."

"Good heavens!" shrieked Brown. "Don't stand there doing nothing. Pull the communication cord. She'd got the tickets."

THE DIFFERENCE

"George," said a pompous squire to an old farm laborer, "you are getting very bent. Why don't you stand up straight like me?"

"Well, sir," answered George, "d'ye see you field of corn?"

"I do," said the squire.

"Then ye'll notice that the full heads hang down, while the empty heads stand up."

Let Your Banker Collect It

If you wish to collect a debt from a party in another section, you can have your banker draw a draft on him at sight or for a given time. This will be presented through his local banker as request for payment from you. When your draft is paid it is turned over to the payer. It is his receipt for an account paid.

PINE LAKE NEWS

Owing to the wet weather the cricket match arranged for Labor Day did not take place.

The dance at Sandy Cove Hotel in the evening was very well attended in spite of the bad roads. The Lousana orchestra provided the music.

We hear Dr. Warke is expected home from Japan.

Howard Snell is slowly recovering from his bad attack of quinsy and hopes to be back at the lake soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernie May were out at the lake for two or three days on the way south in the latest model of Star car from Spokane.

Miss Jerry Stonehouse returned yesterday after making a flying trip to Victoria. Some traveller!

Harvest operations are badly hindered on account of the persistent wet weather.

Lost, between Pine Lake and Red Deer, a perfectly good road; anyone having picked up the same and returning it to its place will earn the grateful thanks of the community.

PRENTISS NOTES

Miss Irinda Hopkins spent two weeks at Clive.

Mr. E. Johnson and sons are building a new coal shed for the coming winter.

Mr. Jenkins from Pentiss district hauled the first three loads of grain to the elevator.

Miss Doer from Big Valley passed through Prentiss on her way to Sylvan Lake.

Mr. Charlie Miller received a carload of lumber from Red Deer.

Mr. Mclay from Big Valley stopped at Prentiss on his return trip from Calgary.

Mrs. Grimes and son were visitors at Red Deer and they'll be able to go quite often now, seeing Cyrus has bought a car.

After the general election, the by-elections slightly altered the totals.

The standing of the parties at the dissolution in 1921 was as follows:

	Cons.	Lib.	Prog.	Ind.
Ontario	62	9	4	0
Quebec	2	60	0	0
Nova Scotia	10	6	0	0
New Brunswick	6	4	1	0
P. E. I.	2	2	0	0
Manitoba	11	1	1	2
Saskatchewan	3	0	7	0
Alberta	6	2	1	1
B. C.	12	0	0	0
	120	84	14	3

At that time there were 13 vacancies, two in Quebec, seven in Ontario, one in Saskatchewan, two in Alberta and one in British Columbia.

POOR HUBBY

It was late at night and the landlord had had a busy day.

There was a knock at the door, and on going to open it the landlord found one of his tenants standing on the doorstep.

"Have you any legal right to interfere to stop a woman on the third floor from screaming at her husband in the night?" asked the man breathlessly.

"Are you the neighbor?" inquired the landlord.

"No," was the reply; "I'm the husband."

ALBERTA UNIVERSITY ROLL OF HONOR

On November 11 a memorial organ will be opened at the University of Alberta, and a bronze tablet will be unveiled bearing the university's honor roll. This honor roll is composed of members of the university, whether in attendance or not at the time of enlistment, who served in the war and who died while still in the service. Every effort has been made to make this record complete, but it is realized that there may be some mistakes. Any corrections should be made now before the permanent roll of honor is made. It is also desirable to have the full names for which the initials stand in the following list. The University Memorial Committee will be very grateful to anyone who will send this information or any other additions or alterations to the secretary, Mrs. I. F. Morrison, University of Alberta, Edmonton.

The honor roll, as it stands at present, is as follows:

"MIKADO" TO PLAY AT THE REX THEATRE

On Saturday evening next the Brandon Opera Company are giving a performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's opera, "The Mikado." This ought to be a great pleasure for Red Deer people. "The Mikado" is almost if not quite the most popular of the famous Gilbert and Sullivan operas. During the revival in London two or three years ago, when the operas were played to crowded theatres for four or five months continuously, a vote was taken among the audiences as to which was the most popular play and the result was a tie between "The Mikado" and "The Yeomen of the Guard."

It will be remembered that last spring the Brandon Opera Company played "Robin Hood" at the Rex Theatre and played it well, both singing and acting being exceedingly good. Their return with "The Mikado" is therefore a very welcome one. It is to be hoped that there will be a full house to act as an encouragement to regular visits. Mr. Brandon called at "The News" office and stated that if good audiences can be obtained, the company will make Red Deer one of their regular playing points. The price of seats will be only $1.00, a reduction from their last visit. The sale of seats will open at Gaetz-Cornett's tomorrow. "The News" editor suggested to Mr. Brandon that he should add "The Beggar's Opera" to his repertoire, and Mr. Brandon replied that this had been suggested to him by numerous people and that he hoped to do so before long. Red Deer may therefore have a chance of hearing this most popular of old operas in the course of the next little time.

The clever lines and catchy music of "The Mikado" that have been played and sung around the world are none the less enjoyable because of their many years of life. The music and jests of "The Mikado" are as old wine. Persons leave the theatre whistling the familiar melodies of "Three Little Maids," "The Flowers That Bloom in the Spring," "Tit-Willow" and the famous "Madrigal."

Brandon Brothers, who are sponsoring "The Mikado," are bringing an organization of gifted singers to Red Deer. The principals are all possessed with excellent voices and the chorus is composed of fresh, young singers, many of them capable of taking principal roles. The costuming and the scenic effects are rich and beautiful and complete to the last detail.

FARMING NOTES

The rain of last week has done a certain amount of damage in some places, where the grain is sprouting as the result of it, but hardly any damage from frost has as yet been reported except in the Prairie Creek and adjourning districts, where the heavy snowstorm of August, followed by frost, has done very great damage.

West of Red Deer approximately 75 per cent of the cutting has been done and if good weather continues the rest will quickly be cut.

The C. A. Co-operative Association shipped three cars of hogs and three cars of cattle to Calgary last week, and are this week sending one double-decked car of lambs from Lousana to Vancouver over the Canadian National Railway.

Ralph Patterson last week bought 11 head of registered Herefords from J. W. Chalmers at Rocky Mountain House.

The experimental farm at Lacombe have for sale a number of high-class Angus cattle, which can be seen at any time and are well worth a farmer's while to look over if he wishes to go in for good stock.

SHEEP SALE TO BE HELD AT LACOMBE

The Central Alberta Wool Growers' Association held a very successful sheep sale at Lacombe in October, 1924. Twelve hundred and seventy-one pure bred rams and pure bred and grade ewes were sold for $16,101.50. These sheep have made such good returns to their owners that very numerous requests have been made to the association for another sheep sale this fall, and it has been decided to hold a combined judging demonstration, show and sale at Lacombe on Wednesday, October 7. In the forenoon a demonstration will be given on how to judge and select breeding rams and ewes, tell ages, etc., and a show will be held of rams, ewes and lambs entered in the sale. The sheep will be sold in the afternoon. Farmers wishing to buy sheep and farmers having sheep for sale should watch the press or write the secretary, Mr. Jesse Fraser, Lacombe, Alberta, for further announcements. A good demand is assured for all the sheep offered for sale, particularly rams.

FRUIT CULTIVATION ON THE PRAIRIES

The difficulties of growing fruit on the older cultivated parts of the once wind-swept prairies of the west are rapidly being overcome. The superintendent of the Morden, Man., dominion experimental station in his report for 1924 remarks that the interest shown in horticulture is increasing very rapidly and that there is a large demand for information thereupon, in fruit growing particularly. Many requests are received for scions and budsticks to work on native plums, sand cherries, pin cherries and choke cherries, for seed for planting and especially for plums and hardy apples. The station at Morden, Man., is largely devoted to horticulture.

Judging from the report, 1923 was not altogether favorable for fruit growing, but we are told that the Siberian crab and its hardy hybrids seem to offer the safest roots for apple and crabapple varieties; that all types of currants had a good year; that gooseberries generally do well; that there was much winter injury in the raspberry patch; that Senator Dunlap and Dakota varieties of strawberries wintered well and produced fair crops; that the Champion variety of ever-bearing strawberry produced generously over a long season, five and one-half quarts being picked on November 1; that the Wanita plum attained good size, and that Champa and Tom Thumb are two low-lying bushes of sand cherries of value in the back-yard garden.

Relative to vegetables, the report states that in a normal season a great variety can be grown with success in that part of the prairies where the Morden, Man., station is situated.

PREPARATION OF THE YOUNG SOW FOR BREEDING PURPOSES

The young sow should be ready for breeding at eight or nine months of age. The ideal condition for breeding is to have her well grown for her age, thrifty, not too fat (i.e., not fat enough for market) and thriving and putting on weight at the time she is bred. A good practice to follow is to allow the young sows and barrows to run together up to four and a half to five months of age, at which time the best young sows should be selected for breeding and the remainder finished for market. The sows for breeding should be kept on pasture with a meal ration made up of two-thirds oats and one-third barley, with five per cent tankage added, which will promote growth rather than the laying on of fat. A rape pasture with a limited grain allowance in the late fall is excellent for flushing the young sows and putting them in good condition physically.

If the breeder has facilities for caring for early litters, the ideal time for breeding would be while the sows are on this rape pasture or just as they go into winter quarters. If breeding must be delayed until December, a more liberal grain ration should be fed to keep the sows growing well after the pasture is done and while the weather is cold. The proportion of oats to barley will depend upon the condition of the sows; that is, if they have a tendency to become too fat not more than one-third of the ration should be barley. It is well to continue the five per cent tankage as it will promote the growth of bone and muscle. Plenty of exercise for the young sows both before and after breeding is extremely important. Exercise may be forced by having the sleeping quarters some distance from the feed trough. If the ground is covered with snow it is advisable to keep soft coal before the young sows.

Farm Finance

FARMING is a business, and the farmer who is a good business man keeps in close touch with his Bank Manager, because the Bank Manager provides a ready contact with the business world.

Many of our older branches were founded upon business connections with farmers. Our country managers are in close touch with all that affects farm production and farm finance, and have an intimate understanding of the problems of farming.

Any Branch Manager of this Bank will welcome the opportunity of a discussion with you.

SCHOOL NOTES

A certain teacher in a certain grade the other day at the close of the period told the class to write down at least three things they had learned in the period. When the writing was done one boy, whose second year in the grade it was, had only one item written down. The teacher gravely reproved him for his lack of attention and intelligence, but the delinquent distinctly scored a point when he meekly replied that all the other points which he had not written down he had learned from the teacher in the previous year, and he had been asked to put down only what he had learned in that period. This was in the nature of the soft answer which turneth away wrath.

The boys are expecting to play Penhold at football shortly but practice will be needed if they are to uphold the credit of Red Deer successfully.

The bad weather has seriously interfered with the practice for the school sports, which are due to be held on the 25th of this month, that is, on Friday week.

A tennis tournament was just getting nicely under way when the rain of last week came along and messed things up. It will be carried out if the weather will behave sensibly.

Grade XI. is studying Drinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln," and Bill Parsons, reading the part of the great American statesman, came to the words, "We must be merciful." He read them with fine dramatic effect and drove home the lesson by deftly beheading a fly which had settled on his desk and was unwisely too absorbed in listening to Bill's reading to keep one of its many eyes on his menacing hand.

Grades XI and XII. are in one room this term.

Grade XII was honored by a visit from the janitor's white kitten on Friday last. Miss Fraser was obliged to ask it to leave the room as it apparently did not know how to keep quiet during school hours—a fault which has been observed in some two-legged kittens before now. Margaret Gaetz courteously escorted the stranger to the door and it departed somewhat reluctantly.

Miss Smith of the High School staff has taken the leadership of the senior group of the C.G.I.T. It is also hoped that she may act as coach to the girls' basketball team and herself play on the team. Of the famous Bobs, only Lillian Carecadden still remains in school, the others having moved to higher spheres.

If it is true as Whittier says that "There's life alone in duty done And rest alone in striving," then Grade XII. felt thoroughly rested by the time Friday of last week came around.

HE KNEW

At a certain meeting the speaker said fervently: "He drove straight to his goal. He looked neither to the right nor to the left, but pressed forward, moved by a definite purpose. Neither friend nor foe could delay him or turn him from his course. All who crossed his path did so at their peril. What would you call such a man?"

"A lorry driver!" shouted a voice from the audience.

PROGRESS WITH THE RINK SCHEME

The meeting of last Friday evening in connection with the rink scheme was distinctly successful and encouraging. The amount of subscriptions promised, $2,500.00, when added to the $4,000.00 already offered and actually available by the Rotary Club and the Elks, makes a really substantial basis on which to proceed further, and there is reason to hope that the canvass for subscriptions will result in the definite assurance of the necessary sum being got and the building of the rink before the winter assured. It was a prudent thing of Mr. W. E. Payne when speaking at the meeting to warn those who might think of subscribing that dividends are a very uncertain prospect. Rinks in small cities do not as a rule prove financially profitable, but on the other hand they certainly give a good return for the money in health and pleasure. More particularly should the parents of school children welcome the rink, since it gives the young people an entirely healthy mode of enjoyment and thereby lessens the temptation to less active and wholesome employment of their spare time.

The proposed rink is of generous dimensions and with its seating accommodation for 1,000 will make a fine place not only for hockey games, ice carnivals and such things, but also for public meetings of various kinds. It is a pity it will not be ready for the election campaign, so that the rival candidates could have poured out their eloquent appeals for public support beneath its roof. However, it should be available for the next provincial election. The posession of the rink should be an asset to the city in other ways then providing amusement for the citizens. It should be an attraction for people from outside points. It ought to be possible to attract people from all over this district to use the rink for winter functions of different kinds, and hockey teams from north and south might well make the Red Deer rink a central and neutral meeting point at which to do battle, thereby bringing visitors into the town to the advantage of the storekeepers and hotels. The committee appointed to obtain information and plans of the type of rink wanted appear to have done their work well. The idea of making the rink available as a swimming pool in the summer is also wholly good. A pool is wanted in Red Deer but the cost will probably be too much at the outset. If we understand the matter rightly it will be possible to adapt the rink for swimming pool purposes later on if it becomes clear that money will be available for it. Altogether it is a cause for satisfaction that this entirely desirable public benefit looks like becoming a reality comparatively soon.

MR. SPEAKMAN AND THE NAVAL QUESTION

In this issue is published the answer of Mr. A. Speakman, M.P., to the questions "The News" addressed to him last week on the naval question. As all who know Mr. Speakman would expect, the answer is couched in moderate terms and expressed clearly and frankly. Nevertheless, in the opinion of this paper, the answer is disappointing, and is the expression of an essential mistake in judgment of imperial and international affairs. Mr. Speakman is a representative of so excellent a type and so generally respected that it is a most ungrateful task to differ with and oppose him. Yet in this matter it is the opinion of this paper that Mr. Speakman is wholly wrong and in this respect at any rate he cannot receive the support of those who feel that Canada's present defence policy is an unworthy one. A detailed examination and criticism of Mr. Speakman's views will appear in next week's issue. In the meantime it is desired to express this paper's appreciation of the courteous and careful consideration and reply which Mr. Speakman has given to its questions.

THE DOMINION ELECTION

The election contest is in full blast. The leaders have more or less completely outlined their policies and for the next six weeks there will be a torrent of rival oratory being poured out. It will probably be of the usual character, violently partisan, marked by the continual use of superlatives of praise or abuse, ignoring the fairly obvious fact that where a country is split into two or more pretty well balanced sections which take opposing views on leading questions, it is highly unlikely that all the merits really lie on one side or the other. It is also highly unlikely that absolute certainty can be attained as to the wisdom or unwisdom of any one policy. For this reason it would be a welcome novelty if some of the leading speakers at this election were to adopt something of a balanced moderation in their method of speech. It is not suggested that nobody ought to have any definite political opinions or that everybody ought to float in a cloud of vague uncertainty, never coming to any decision because they may possibly be wrong. That is, of course, an absurdity. Decisions are necessary and opinions on which to base decisions are necessary. What is suggested is that there should be less dogmatic self-assurance about the statement of political opinions and more of a quiet business-like weighing of the argument for and against each line of policy, so that the decisions come to may be obviously the result of thoughtful prudence and not of rash prejudice. It is at least possible that a speaker who gave to his audience his opinions the tribute of courteous consideration and then proceeded to show why, on a balance being taken, those opinions were in his view not the soundest, would in the end carry more conviction than the orthodox sledge-hammer assertive type of speaker. Then again, it is a pity that there is so much of the scoring of petty little debating points and of assertions which really cannot by any stretch of imagination have a vestige of truth about them. For instance, Mr. Mackenzie King in his opening election speech asserted that Mr. Meighen by his speeches on the depressed state of business in Canada during the last few years had done more to drive people from Canada to the United States than all the immigration officials of that country put together. That, of course, is childish nonsense and quite unworthy of a man holding the position of premier of Canada. Such silly exaggerations do not come from the Liberal side only by any means. They come from all parties, but they certainly ought not to come from anyone, and least of all from the leaders, who ought to set the standard for the rest of the country. It is to be hoped that if there is a contest in Red Deer, the speakers will maintain a high level in respect of moderation and balance, unless indeed the whole business is to be regarded as a sort of low farce in which the rudest clown gains the loudest applause. That, of course, is not exactly the light in which to look at the government of a great country.

THE REDUCTION IN WEST-BOUND FREIGHT RATES

A paean of joy from the majority of Alberta's citizens, particularly the farmers, has greeted the announcement of the Railway Commission's order to the two great Canadian railway systems to reduce their freight rates on coast-bound grain to proportionately the same scale as east-bound grain. A perfect calm has been a joyous chorus of "There are no longer any Rocky Mountains." The decision of the commission has its peculiar points. It is a decision of two members out of five, and the other three are said to be opposed to it; but not having sat on the hearing of the rates case, they cannot apparently have any voice in the matter. Then the decision has been announced at an opportune moment politically for the Liberal government. Here is a great financial boon granted to the western farmers, not directly by the government but at least to some extent through the action of the government. The west cannot do other—so it may be argued by government supporters—than show its appreciation of the boon by voting either for the Liberals or for their rather friendly rivals, the Progressives. That, however, does not matter for the moment. The reduction has been ordered. Why it has been ordered may be ignored for present purposes.

Now, the C.P.R. is not a feeble and oppressed corporation and the C.N.R. is the property of the people of Canada. Neither of these railways need, therefore, be looked upon with heart-wrung sympathy as lambs at the mercy of the Railway Commission wolf. Nevertheless, the railways are entitled to entirely fair and economically sound treatment, and it is just possibly open to question whether this new freight rate order is either fair or economically sound. There is no doubt whatever that the cost of construction of the lines through the Rocky Mountains and the cost of haulage of trains over the mountain sections are much greater than the cost of construction and of haulage over a similar length of line on the prairies. Ought the freight rates to be calculated on the same scale for the two sections? It would almost seem as if the task of taking grain over the Rockies to Vancouver is a much heavier one than that of taking it a similar distance over the prairies and should be paid for more highly. If the rate for haulage over the mountains is too high, then it is possible that the rate on the prairies is also too high and that both ought to be reduced, but that they should be put on the same scale seems rather a dubious proceeding. If it is felt—and that suggestion has been made—that the economic and national interests of Canada demanded that the western grain route should be fostered by a reduction of the west-bound freight rate, then Canada, which is apparently going to benefit by that fostering, ought surely to pay for it by subsidies or other compensations to the companies. If there were only the one company and that a national one, the case would be simpler, for the people would be taking out of one pocket what they put into another, though even so there would be possible economic confusion caused by an "unnatural" freight rate on the railway. Since, however, there are two railways and one of them is privately owned, it ought to be very carefully considered whether this is just the right way of giving the relief to the western farmers that they need. It is not easy for farmers to take a detached view of this question. Their interests are too directly concerned not to warp their opinions somewhat. They are likely to cling tightly to their new boon and scornfully refuse to consider any questions of its fairness. Yet the question ought to be faced and argued out thoroughly. There is much money involved and a rather important principle. It would be a pity if an unsound principle were to be allowed entry without challenge into our economic system.

spect of arrears should be remitted, amounting to a little more than $40.00 and a water rate of $14.00 charged in respect of a tenant of his property who had paid neither rent nor water rate.

Considerable discussion followed on this subject. It was clear that Mr. Miller did not come under the Soldiers' Relief Act in respect to taxes on his home property, though forestry corps men and women who served overseas kinds of such work, did. One or two similar cases were referred to as possible precedents, though it was not quite certain if they were really parallel. Alderman McClure thought that the water rate should be remitted but not the penalties. Aldermen Galbraith and Howlett thought that Mr. Miller ought to be granted his request. Finally Alderman Galbraith moved that the rebate asked for be granted on account of Mr. Miller's overseas service, subject to the city solicitor giving his opinion that the council could legally grant it. On a vote this was carried by a majority.

The commissioner's report was as follows:

The Council, City of Red Deer.

Gentlemen: We submit our regular report as follows:

1. We respectfully request that you appoint a date for the holding of an auction sale of lands to which the city acquired title in December, 1924, and fix the minimum price on each parcel. The earliest date that can be fixed is November 11, 1925.

2. We submit offer by Wm. Milne to rent the sheep barn at the exhibition grounds for the fall and winter months. Some years ago one of the exhibition buildings was rented to A. H. Trimble for the feeding of hogs. There was no objection raised to this during the winter, but in the summer citizens residing close to the grounds complained of the odor and such use was discontinued.

3. We submit offer by Wm. Milne to rent a parcel of land adjoining the stock yards for the purpose of feeding hogs. The parcel of land wanted is rough and could not profitably be broken up and the renting of this parcel will not interfere with the city leasing the rest of the land across the C.R.R. for farming purposes.

4. The council is asked to fix a price at which it will sell a site for a distributing warehouse and plant which may be built next spring. The site preferred is approximately one acre on Fifth Street North immediately west of the C.P.R. The company plans to build improvements costing about $20,000, and install water and sewer connections and its own fire protection system. An alternative site is the land south of the oil tanks of the British American Oil Company on Kingsmill Avenue and Fourth Street South, but this site is not served by water or sewer mains.

5. Weeds are growing up again in cracks in the cement walks, particularly on Gaetz Avenue South. These cracks were filled with hot asphalt some years ago, but this has not been effective. We have written the provincial university for advice as to the best methods of killing these weeds. There are also a number of water service connection boxes raised above the surface of some of the cement walks. We respectfully ask your instructions regarding these two matters.

6. We wrote the provincial fire commissioner re having some old buildings that are fire traps demolished and submit the correspondence. We do not recommend taking any action that will involve legal costs to have a provincial statute interpreted. We will discuss the question with the city solicitor and see if a way can be found to deal with this.

7. We have been disappointed in getting a scarifier to tear up Gaetz Avenue and Ross Street which, in our opinion, is the only cheap way of getting the pitch holes out of these streets. We had a small scarifier made to use on the small grader and tried it out on Ross Street but the work was too heavy altogether for such a small machine. The Richardson Reed Machinery Company had a large grader in Red Deer since last fall and one of their travelling agents agreed to have a scarifier shipped here and give a day's demonstration. If the demonstration had been satisfactory we hoped to hire the machine to finish the work. The company had the scarifier shipped here but did not go on with the demonstration. The Wehr grader agents promised a day's demonstration here during the exhibition with their machine and had the machine shipped here but did not put on the demonstration. We had arranged to borrow a large grader and scarifier and hire an engine to do the work but the grader was at work and we could not get the engine we had hoped to get. The scarifier was shipped here last week and the grader should have been hauled into town last week but the weather prevented that. We hope to get the grader in this week and to be able to hire an engine and get this work done without delay if you approve of it.

8. We respectfully ask your instructions as to the building of the cement walk, curb and gutter and boulevard on First Street South, Parkvale, that was petitioned for as a local improvement. As the plank walk was dangerous it was taken up some weeks ago and the wet weather has made it very difficult for residents of that street. In July we requested the city engineer, R. G. Dawe, to give the levels and lay out the work, which Foreman Jones was ready to do at any time. Mr. Dawe did some work on the levels but did not finish it and we have heard nothing from him since. In our report of August 10, we recommended that we be authorized to have the work done as soon as we could get the levels and prepare the required report as to cost, assessment, etc., after the work was completed so that there would be no delay. If the work is to be done this year it should be done immediately before frost. From the street grade book made by engineers some years ago it appears that there will be a cut of about two feet all along the west end of this street and probably the petitioners should be informed of this, if it is found to be the case, by the engineer who takes the levels, before the work is undertaken.

9. We submit departmental reports and statement of receipts and disbursements for August.

10. We submit accounts for your authorization.

Discussion of the report followed. A committee was named to make recommendations to the council as to minimum prices to be fixed for lands to be sold by auction on November 11. William Milne's offer in respect of the buildings and land referred to in paragraphs 2 and 3 of the commissioner's report was accepted. In respect to the building at the Fair Grounds the rent was fixed at $20.00 per month. In respect of the land adjoining the stock yards the rent was fixed at $15.00 per year. With respect to the distributing warehouse and plant for which the council were asked to fix a price for a site, it was left to the commissioners to negotiate with the company, a price of $50 for one acre being thought to be the correct one. It was left to the commissioners to deal with the matter of scarifying Gaetz Avenue and Ross Street. As to the cement walk on First Street South, Parkvale, it was explained by the commissioners that Engineer Dawe would be here Saturday to finish the giving of the levels and laying out of the work.

The fire chief's report showed no fires in August. Four regular practices with an average attendance of 12 were held, and the usual training was done. Men and hose were on duty during the fair at the Fair Building in case of emergency. The fire hall roof is leaking and needs repainting. It was decided to get an estimate of the cost of such painting. The commissioners are to look into the numbers of the fire brigade and report.

The chief of police's report showed, among other things, four arrests, two offences under the liquor act; 43 transients found work, seven ordered out of town and 155 motors in the auto camp during the month. The health report showed the city clean and in good condition.

The following accounts were authorized to be paid:

Fred O'Connor, $10.00; Bank of Montreal, $1,301.03; wage sheet, August, $74.20; Fred O'Connor, $9.12; Western General Electric Co., $25.75; Gaetz Cornett Co., $4.85; H. G. Stone & Sons, $49.80; W. Springbett, $31.60; Hugh McLevin, $8.00; Provincial Telephones, $16.35; Attorney-general, $45.00; Mrs. A. E. Coram, $40.00; Sam English, $13.95; Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs, $33.02; Mrs. A. E. Coram, $4.50; C. J. Smith, $55.00; N. M. Burnett, $27.80; E. G. Johns & Co., $7.25; Central Service Station, $13.45; H. H. Humber, $2.75; Jarvis Goodey Co., $10.60.

Some arrears of water rates were authorized to be written off as hopeless, the remark being made that they were surprisingly few over a term of 17 years.

The commissioner reported that there is a chance of selling some of the city's land in the Woodlawn division north of North Red Deer at $50.00 per acre. This land is in the Red Deer school district.

Alderman Galbraith moved and Alderman Broughton seconded that steps should be taken to obtain legislative power for the city to hold advance polls in municipal elections. It was agreed that this was desirable, but the commissioner thought it possible that it could be done without any amendment of the city charter.

THE LADIES' COLUNM

WHERE TO SHOP AND WHY

By Cecille

The days of the easy dessert of fresh fruit are speeding past, aren't they? It's the pudding time now on, and at the Western General Electric shop I found sets of the most adorable little individual Pyrex pudding dishes. They're anything individual so fascinating, I wonder? A good, old-fashioned baked custard in a Pyrex dish, all to one's self, takes on an added charm.

One always notices the china at the Western General. Charming cups, in Paragon and Aynsley, always abound there, and I doubt if any housewife ever had enough cups and saucers. I hung over an electric chafing dish, thinking of impromptu suppers prepared so easily and quickly by that means. Electric cooking is more fun than work, I find.

Of course, the lighting fixtures are most noticeable in this particular shop. There are several very handsome designs, both direct and indirect schemes, and with the long winter evenings approaching, we must all look to our lighting. I think it one of the most important features of the home. A dim, uncertain light is a source of unconscious annoyance to everyone in the house. If friend husband is irritable of an evening, shouldn't wonder if the fault lies with the reading-lamp!

Have you started your fall cleaning? Horrible thought! But it has to be done, so let's make the best of it. The best is undoubtedly the cleaning of the new paper. At Percy Kent's shop you'll find a most complete assortment of designs and prices. The better-looking tapestry papers are there in all sorts of colorful patterns, and the dainty bedroom papers make one eager to begin.

A small tin of varnish would freshen up those stairs, and I dare say the front door wouldn't hurt for a lick, if there's any left over. You'll find Mr. Kent a very clean and quick workman, so really the business will be more a pleasure than otherwise if you entrust it to him.

And while we're at it, let's not slight the kitchen. It's time to do away with the old-fashioned kitchen table, and instal a kitchen cabinet, all shining white enamel, with drawers and cupboards for everything! What a comfort it is to work with everything right to one's hand! You'll find the king of cabinets at Bullock & Callender's, and at a price which beats Eaton's, allowing for the freight.

Even the warmest houses have odd chilly corners, and a small heater is often a source of infinite comfort in this Sunny Alberta of ours. All sorts and sizes of heaters to be had at the Second-hand Shop.

Also there's a particularly attractive type of porcelain, to save the wear and tear on our better china. Though it's absurdly low in price, it's of a very attractive, odd shape and well worth your while investigating.

It's the baggage which marks this shop as out-of-the-ordinary. Where else do you see rows of solid leather bags, of trunks of every shape, and where, I ask you, do you find such affluent-looking hat boxes? There's a subtle something about good baggage. The manner of the porter loudly proclaims that fact as he helps you to your car. Everyone with any self-respect should possess the sort of bags to elicit this particular homage.

In passing Porter's Pharmacy I noticed sundry youngsters hanging over the window, and stopped to see what was engaging their attention. I found a line of books, especially designed to appeal to the juvenile mind, and got out under the auspices of the Society to Promote Christian Knowledge. These books have all been censored, so you can be sure what the kiddies are reading—a great advantage these days. They are such nice little volumes, just fitted to children's hands.

Inside, I saw a most imposing row of canisters of Hilley's old English toffee. It's a most complete display, including the satisfying-looking slab we all remember in our youth. Oh, the taste of that toffee! How it melts in your mouth, and what a wholesome treat it is for the kiddies.

We probably all know the Pro-Phy-Lac-Tic tooth brush, but the nail and hair brush were new to me. They are most business-like looking brushes, strongly set, and guaranteed steam-able. A pair of particularly good-looking military brushes caught my eye. Quite the nicest brushes at the price I've ever seen.

I fell, before I left, for a dainty packet of bath salts. They're priced so low—just a box of two blocks—and I shall put them away till some day when I'm feeling tired and out of sorts, when I shall treat myself to their fragrance and feel completely invigorated.

Have you seen that sumptuous coat in Gaetz-Ewart's window? I mean the one in Bolivia cloth, with skunk trimming. What a lovely color it is —like old wine—and the texture is so soft and fine. These coats are much warmer than they look, too, as the wind won't go through their plush-like finish.

They have a most interesting rack of panty-dresses for little tots. In flannel, with touches of embroidery—just the ideal garment for winter wear. They tub perfectly, and there's practically no pressing to them. Kiddies are very lucky nowadays, in their simple, comfortable clothing. Don't you think so? And we grown-ups are fortunate, too, in being able to get the beautiful cashmere stockings that are displayed. The shades are so smart, and the workmanship so good. I love the silk-and-wool stocking for fall and winter. Worn with oxfords of the sensible, wide last they combine elegance with comfort to the last degree. You must look at Gaetz-Ewart's footwear before you choose your new outfit.

The outstanding thing I noticed at Mitchell's jewelry shop was a new consignment of silver. There are the most beautiful fruit and cake baskets, pierced and chased in all sorts of charming designs. I noticed particularly a comport of the new, low-standing type. Isn't it gratifying, too, that all these lovely things are manufactured right here in Canada?

There are some new vanity cases, too, that will appeal irresistibly to the flappers, as well as to their mammas. Of colorful tortoise-shell composition, be-studded and corded, they are a delight to behold. So also are the jeweled compacts, containing French accessories to the toilette. These novelties are all so bright and sparkling that it's no wonder we frail women fall for them!

Of course, a vanity-case or change purse is very nice to swank with, but when one goes shopping, a real handbag is a necessity. Have you seen the new ones at Gaetz-Cornett's? It is the best assortment I've seen in a long time. All of English make, they are worked out in a variety of leathers—all genuine—and the trimmings are both new and attractive. They are fine copies of bags, equipped with change purses, etc. One could be sure that any of these bags would last almost a lifetime and retain its good appearance to the end.

The Victrolas have been moving out fast, I was informed, so don't delay seeing them if you're intending to purchase, as there are only slightly used machines and, if you hurry, you might get the benefit of the better price.

Do you belong to the Gaetz-Cornett Library? I find it a most satisfactory one and always find the book I want there. Really, we shouldn't neglect our reading as we do. We need the relaxation, as well as to keep abreast of what's being read in larger places.

The thing that hit me in the eye as I passed Lord's was the guns. But goodness knows, we poor women have had a surfeit of that subject for the past week! Even now we're expecting the arrival of a very grubby individual, staggering under the weight of a bag containing a most grisly collection of slimy corpses. What a blessing it is the season isn't any longer than it is!

So I hurried past and looked at the display of millinery—and a very fine display it is, too. There are rather larger hats in the mode and notably for dress wear, numbers of the smart little felts for every day and some very gay little models in bright colors for our gayer occasions. I saw particularly a large black pattern hat with a unique suede trimming, and the quaintest little silver ribbon affair, with French flowers sitting jauntily on the top.

Descending from the sublime to the —well, not the ridiculous, perhaps, but certainly the mundane—I noticed some feather-weight vests for chilly days. Though they are flannel, they are so light and dainty, with their opera tops, that they can hardly be classed as such. The warmer nighties, too, are not what they were in our grandmothers' time, and, personally, I do like to be warm!

I was surprised to find in the grocery department a good assortment of fruit. Those of us who are belated in our preserving and pickling have at least a few days' grace. But it would be well to get it done right away, as such fine fruit as I found at Lord's is bound to go out very fast. I've secured mine and must rush home to do it up. I have 200 jars, but I wish it were 400. How many have you?

THE DOMINION ELECTION AND ITS ISSUES

The election contest has been opened by the speeches of the premier and the leader of the opposition, and for the next six weeks or so it will form the chief topic of conversation among most of the people of Canada.

It would seem that there are a number of issues for decision in this election, some of which have been dealt with in the leaders' speeches, while others have been more or less ignored or only lightly glanced at. These issues are:

1. The tariff.
2. Public expenditure and taxation.
3. Transportation and in particular the railway question.
4. Immigration.
5. Imperial relations and national defence.
6. Criminal law reform and administration.
7. Reform of the Canadian senate.

It may help readers of "The News" if some short consideration is given to these issues before opposing views of the parties being indicated where there is opposition, and, so far as possible, a detailed and impartial view being taken of the questions involved.

1. The Tariff. Here there is a flat contradiction between the views of the parties. The Liberals favor a moderate tariff for revenue purposes only. The Conservatives favor a definitely protective tariff but Mr. Meighen adds that special consideration must be given to the maritime provinces and the prairie provinces to make good their distance from the industrial centres and markets. Such consideration, it is suggested, should take the form of special railway rates or subsidies, the cost of which is to be borne by the dominion as a whole. The Progressives undoubtedly favor a low tariff or even a wholly free trade policy. Mr. Mackenzie King suggests an advisory board on taxation to deal with this question of tariffs and other taxation problems. Mr. Meighen suggests a tariff commission for much the same purpose. There does not appear to be a great deal of difference in essential principle between these two proposals.

The quarrel between free traders and protectionists is an old one and the subject is so complicated that those who approach it with unprejudiced minds must find it difficult to come to a decision. Probably the truth is that at certain times, in certain places, for certain classes, free trade is best, while at other times, in other places and for other classes, protection is a benefit. Insofar as all trade is merely an exchange of goods between individuals and peoples, the less interference with such trade by tariffs that takes place, the more the trade will flourish. On the other hand, if it is a question as to whether one section of a people is to exchange its wares with the remainder of that people or with foreigners when both have the same goods to exchange, it seems natural to assist the exchange with the kindred community rather than with the foreigners, and one method of doing this is to put up a tariff against the importation of the foreigners' goods. If, however, this is done, there is inevitably the risk that the home trader, being thus protected, will raise the price of his wares or lower their quality.

The answer to such a risk is to provide authority to some public body to prevent any such exploitation of the buyers by watching prices closely, and if undue advantage of the protective tariff is being taken, to stop it either by fixing prices, which is a difficult thing to do, or by removing the tariff protection. There is a suggestion of some such procedure in Mr. Meighen's reference to the proposed tariff commission but it is not fully worked out, and no party seems capable or willing to give a clear and simple exposition of the problem, such as simple people unversed in gilh economic formulæ can readily follow. Mr. Meighen points out, rightly enough, that there has been in recent years a very general tendency all over the world to resort to protective tariffs but he does not discuss how far this has been caused not by economic but by political reasons, such as the exaggerated nationalism which has followed on the political reconstruction after the Great War. It would almost certainly appear to be the case that there is in this matter an inevitable conflict of interest between the agricultural west of Canada and the industrial east, which calls for something in the nature of mutual concessions, if harmony and all-round well being are to result.

2. Public Expenditure aand Taxation. In this sphere the position is profoundly unsatisfactory. The war has been over for nearly seven years, yet in the Canadian taxation is still at war levels and the public debt of the dominion of Canada is glaringly high. Mr. Mackenzie King asserts that the debt has been reduced during his term of office. Mr. Meighen flatly contradicts him and says that the debt is higher and in particular that Mr. King has deliberately ignored in his calculations and statements the debt owing in respect of the Canadian National Railway system which he asserts to have increased by $230,000,000.00 since Mr. King took office. Neither of the leaders has stated in detail just how expenditure is to be reduced and taxation lightened. It would probably assist the electors of the dominion to form an opinion on this subject if, a clear statement were issued showing: (a) the pre-war debt of Canada; (b) the debt at the end of the war; (c) the present debt, including the railway dept; (d) the present annual expenditure of Canada, including separately the amount necessarily paid for interest on public debt; (e) a comparison between the cost of government administration before the war and the present cost with an explanation of why the officials employed now are more numerous and the cost of government higher, if they are so, than before the war: (f) a detailed statement of economies possible and proposed. With out such information the average elector is liable to regard general protestations or promises of economy with no little doubt and suspicion.

3. Transportation and the Railway Question. Here the main issue is that of the Canadian National Railway. It seems to be admitted on all sides that Sir Henry Thornton as head of the C.N.R. has improved the general efficiency of the system and got better financial results than might almost have been expected under unfavorable business conditions. Nevertheless, the system remains a heavy burden on the people of Canada, its deficit last year, after paying all charges, being in the neighborhood of 60 million dollars. Neither Mr. Mackenzie King nor Mr. Meighen are real, by clear as to what they propose to do with this problem. Mr. King claims merit for his government for the improved working and condition of the railway, but does not clearly suggest how the burden is to be got rid of. Mr. Meighen makes some vague hints at amalgamation of the C.P.R. and the C.N.R. Mr. King makes equally vague suggestions as to the railway commission being given power to enforce economies of administration on both railways in the direction of cooperation and running powers over one another's routes. Mr. Meighen scoffs at these as already being in the hands of the commission and suggests that he would put a stop to certain reckless expenditure on hotels, golf courses and such things, but neither leader really lays down a clear solution. Probably the truth is that the Canadian National system was a bad investment for the original private owners and a bad bargain for the Canadian people, and that the people must face the alternative of selling the system at a great loss and at the risk of seeing the C.P.R. become the sole railway of Canada, or must continue to pay large annual losses on the system until such time as increased settlement and prosperity of Canada, coupled with continued efficient and non-political management of the system, brings it onto a paying basis.

4. Immigration. Mr. Mackenzie King advocates a vigorous immigration policy but he makes no attempt to explain why he has either had no such policy during his term of office or changed a policy as he has had been attended with exceedingly poor results in spite of unemployment conditions in Great Britain highly favoring migration from there to Canada, and a policy of the United States which greatly favors Canada by shutting out British and European immigrants. Mr. Meighen rightly points out this failure of Mr. King's policy but does not go very far towards suggesting anything better himself. Neither leader appears to have dealt with the possibility of anything approaching to an imperial conference which would review the economic conditions of the whole world and lay down detailed development plans which might be published for the benefit of capitalists, business men and labor men alike, with a view to a wholesale development of Canada's dominant resources through the combined efforts of Canada and Great Britain. It almost seems as if the Canadian people are willing to trust to Canada's growth being effected by the introduction of a few thousand carefully selected agricultural immigrants and to ignore to a large extent anything in the way of larger plans.

5. Imperial Relations and National Defence. All through his period of power, Mr. Mackenzie King has made it absolutely clear that he has not a vestige of enthusiasm or even liking for imperial co-operation. From time to time, answer to proddings from friends and opponents he has paid verbal tributes to the Empire, but his actions, as well as many of his speeches, continuously belie these occasional tributes. All his enthusiasm goes to emphasizing the autonomy of Canada, which nobody thinks of questioning. At the last imperial conference his attitude was almost wholly negative, and actions like the halibut fisheries treaty, the separate Canadian flag and the entirely contemptible failure of Canada to make any respectable provision for her own defence, all indicate more clearly than words can do what the present premier of Canada thinks of the Empire and Canada's relation to it. On the other hand, the Conservatives, while rightly claiming for Canada her place as a partner in the Empire, have never failed to realize that complete nationhood means complete responsibility and favor the frank acceptance and shouldering of such responsibility by means of the taking of a share in imperial defence just as Australia and New Zealand are doing. For the time being, domestic problems outweigh imperial ones, but the issue is far too important to be ignored and the tendency of the Mackenzie King policy cannot be mistaken. It is a tendency of alienation from the British Empire and increasing dependence upon the United States. That the practical tendency is covered by a mash of verbal denial does not alter its real character. It is for Canadians to ask themselves whether the present Canadian defence policy is consistent with self-respect or ordinary wisdom, and whether the Liberal or the Conservative policy in this sphere is the better.

6 Criminal Law Reform and Administration. This is not going to be a prominent issue. There is not much in the way of difference of opinion between the parties with respect to it, but it is none the less a matter of prime importance to the Canadian people. The complete breakdown of the criminal law and administration in the United States and the resulting increase of crime of every description must form a grave danger to Canada, and there have been some disquieting indications that similar symptoms are present among us. For this evil the cure appears to lie in the removal of legal technicalities and over-numerous appeals which may shelter an essentially guilty man from justice, and a sharp stoppage being put to the interference by the executive with the full carrying out of the courts' sentences. It should be made definitely impossible for any sentence of a court to be interfered with by means of pardon or parole by the executive, and the court which passes a sentence should alone have the right to interfere with the carrying out of it. and should itself not interfere except on the most urgent grounds. At present a criminal is no sooner sentenced than his friends, if he has any, begin to agitate for his pardon and release. The cases of several notable financial swindlers in recent years illustrate this vividly, and the effect of such executive interference is seriously threatening to weaken the effect of the criminal law and so sap the whole foundations of social order.

7. The Reform of the Senate. This has been a political question for a long time, but the public is inclined to be apathetic regarding it and there is always a suspicion of unreality about the demands for its reform. On the one hand the senate is beyond all question an entirely undemocratic body, composed almost wholly of rather unsuccessful or listless political partisans. On the other hand, its action has usually been in the nature of a brake on the action of governments whether Conservative or Liberal, rather than a barrier to progress. Mr. Mackenzie King has demanded its reform but has made no concrete suggestion as to the manner of the reform and until he does so his demand is unlikely to receive serious attention.

It seems fairly certain that the tariff is going to be the main issue on which the politicians will concentrate their attention and on which the election is likely to be won or lost. In the event the Liberals and Progressives will at least possibly combine against the Conservatives. It is, however, possible that, as the contest advances, other issues will become prominent and will share with the tariff the attention of the people.

ECKVILLE HAPPENINGS

The principal topic of convereation of late has been the very unseasonable weather. After a couple of days sun, rain commenced again on Tuesday afternoon and it has rained intermittently ever since, with not much prospect of clearing at this writing. Great preparations were made for the school fair, which was planned for Wednesday, but the weather was so bad that it was decided to postpone it till September 23. The roads are becoming almost impaseable in all directions. Cutting is not finished and threshing crews are unable to commence operations. Worst of all, reports are coming in that here and there grain is commencing to sprout in the stooks and if the rain continues much longer this will be general. The longer one lives in Alberta, the more one marvels at the different things that can happen to a crop. Yet in spite of everything the writer believes we will harvest a respectable crop.

Messrs. Maklin and Myers have given up business to Joe Komila's garage. John is now operating it himself, with Mr. Maklin as his mechanic. He has installed an acetylene welding apparatus and various other new machines.

Mr. D. C. Sinclair is leaving a little sooner than anticipated, on Tuesday, September 15, for Alberta, as announced earlier. The Ladies' Aid gave a farewell tea to Mrs. Sinclair on Friday afternoon and presented her with a china tea set. Mrs. Sinclair has been a hard and efficient worker in this organization. An informal reception was held at the home of Mr. J. M. McDonald on Sunday afternoon, under the general auspices of the Union Church, to give the members an opportunity of saying good-bye. They presented Mr. and Mrs. Sinclair with a handsome carving set.

Mr. Sinclair's successor as manager of the Atlas Lumber yard will be Mr. A. W. Harju, who has been a contractor at Rocky Mountain House for some years. Mr. Harju has been here for the past few days and his family arrived on Tuesday.

Mr. O. T. Norem has sold his half-section near Gilby to Mr. Wilson, formerly of Leduc.

Two new threshing outfits have arrived in town. Both are Sawyer-Massey machines. One is consigned to Mr. Thomas Graft of Gilby and the other goes to Leedale.

CORRESPONDENCE

Dear Mr. Editor: I have read with interest the letters in the Red Deer press suggesting certain ladies and gentlemen as candidates for the provincial election, which must take place before this time next year, and having always had a profound respect for our present member, I have made it my business to find out how he stands in the opinion of this district. I find that some criticize him for lack of initiative; others think that he does not do enough in securing heavy grants for road work and other crying needs of the district; but one and all acclaim him for his honesty and integrity.

When this government went into power the ship of state was carrying an overload so top heavy that it took very careful steering to keep her from capsizing. The ship of state is still sailing along right side up and the load has been shifted so it is not quite so topheavy. This has been done by keeping down heavy grants, by curbing the branching-out spirit so inherent in every westerner. In other words in controlling initiative, practising economy and being absolutely honest with the provincial taxpayer. This policy must perforce be carried on for some years yet, then if we have a member who has all the virtues to fill the bill and has in addition one term's experience, why change? I have looked in vain for some platform put forward by either of the old parties whereby our condition would be improved. So let us practice economy in one constituency by cutting out election expenses and returning Mr. G. W. Smith by acclamation.

H. MEERES.

Editor The Red Deer News.

Dear Sir: In view of the forthcoming elections, it has struck me that the time is ripe for giving serious thought not only to the affairs of our province and country but to the calibre of men who are seeking election. Is it not time for us to seek new blood rather than continue the unbusinesslike and extravagant form of government at present in force?

The political conventions as at present held have apparently become love feasts in which a case of nominations for candidates are made, irrespective of whether the person nominated has made a success of his own business, has education sufficiently broadminded to avoid bigotry and has shown by word and deed that it is for the welfare of the country, and not as a private gain, that he works to represent a constituency.

High River has given Red Deer a lead in nominating Professor Carlyle for its provincial candidate, a man of outstanding ability, qualified as a business man, as an agriculturalist and also of exceptional educational attainments. I would therefore suggest that in seeking a candidate for the provincial constituency on a business platform, men of the type of J. R. Weston or W. B. Payne, who, as you are aware, have total absence of business ability and varied experience, would do a great deal to offset the lack of vision and unbusiness-like legislation of the past few years, both in the provincial and federal parliaments.

Canada, as a nation, has been extremely unfortunate in that, while having too many politicians, has since confederation only produced two outstanding statesmen, Sir John A. Mc Donald and Sir Wilfred Laurier; yet in this very district we have Dr. Michael Clark relegated to a back seat and apparently to be overlooked for the forthcoming federal election because of his outspoken fearlessness in matters imperial.

Though I have been a consistent party man in this province for 20 years, I feel that the time has come when the electors must give careful thought to the ability of their representative and only support a business administration.

Thanking you for the opportunity of expressing myself,

Yours faithfully,
J. W. M.

EX-SERVICE MEN'S ORGANIZATION

Calgary, Alta., August 22.

Major A. R. Gibson,
Red Deer, Alta.

re Earl Haig's Unity Movement

You will no doubt have heard that I have been appointed temporary chairman of the provincial provisional committee in connection with the above movement.

I have been recommended to write to you and ask if you will call a meeting of ex-service men in your district and form a local provisional committee, consisting of one or two delegates from every ex-service organization, and also delegates to represent ex-service men who are not attached to any organization. The object in which it is proposed to form embraces all ex-service men who have served during the last century.

Some provinces have already elected provincial delegates for a dominion convention which it is hoped to hold in October. It is necessary, therefore, that we hasten our organization so that we can have a provincial meeting and decide on the delegates from Alberta.

I hope I am not asking too much of you and that a local committee will be formed in your district at once.

Yours truly,

G. E. SANDERS,
Provincial Chairman of the Provisional Committee.

In conformity with the content of the above letter, a meeting will be held in the G.W.V.A. rooms on Sunday, September 20, at 3 p.m. All ex-service men are urged to be present to discuss this movement which is all-important to men who served in the Great War.

MAKE HASTE SLOWLY

When the next elections have scattered the clouds, we may expect a general improvement in business. The country will become prosperous as it was before the war. We may then open our doors to foreigners that they may come and help us to develop our incomparable domain. Everything comes to him who waits.—La Patrie.

A MUTUAL LIFE policy insures your savings—the harvest of your years. It guarantees your saving plan, whatever it is.
For example, suppose you have a mortgage on your house and plan to clear the title in a certain number of years. A participating endowment policy in the Mutual Life would cover the risk upon your life, give you a fair percentage of profit on your money, and pay off your mortgage when it became due. EXAMINER'S REVIEW OF PROVINCIAL MARKETS

Thursday, Sept. 10.

CATTLE

Beef—Prices on butcher cattle held firm on Calgary market. Choice heavy steers $5.25 to $5.75; choice light $5.25 to $5.50; good $4.50 to $5.00. medium, $4.00 to $4.50; common $2.50 to $3.50. Choice heifers $4.00 to $4.25; good $3.25 to $3.75. Choice cows $3.00 to $3.25; good $2.75 to $2.90; medium $2.00 to $2.50; common $2.00 to $2.25; canners, cutters $1.00 to $1.85. Choice bulls $2.00 to $2.50; medium $1.50 to $1.85; canners $1.25 up. Choice light veal calves $5.00 to $5.25; common $2.00 to $3.75. Feeders, Stockers—Good feeders $3.50 to $5.00; stock steers $3.00 to $4.00; stock heifers $2.50 to $2.75; cows $2.00 to $2.50.

Beef—Heavy receipts and too many in-between kinds of cattle for the good of the market, combined with a slack demand, had a tendency to slow up the Edmonton market. Choice heavy steers $5.00 to $6.00; choice light $4.75 to $5.00; good $4.25 to $4.75; medium $3.25 to $4.00; common $2.50 to $3.25. Choice heifers $4.25 to $4.50; good $3.75 to $4.25. Choice cows $3.00 to $3.25; good $2.75 to $3.00; medium $2.25 to $2.75; common $1.75 to $2.00; canners $1.25 to $1.75. Choice bulls $2.00 to $2.25; good $1.50 to $1.75; canners from $1.00 up. Choice veal calves sold about 50c lower at $4.50 to $5.25; common kinds $2.00 to $3.00. Feeders, Stockers—Choice feeder steers continued to move freely, but prices have a downward tendency, quotations for feeders are $2.50 to $5.00; stock steers $2.00 to $3.00; stock cows $1.50 to $2.50.

HOGS

Calgary market is weaker and quotations are $12.25 to $12.50, thick smooths. Hardly any trading has been done owing to light receipts.

Edmonton market is inclined to be unsettled with a weaker undertone. Some at $12.75.

SHEEP

On Calgary market shipments are more frequent but values unchanged. Edmonton reports show prices unchanged on light receipts.

GRAIN

Prices on the markets are first breaking and then recovering. A little more interest is being taken by foreign buyers, which makes things look as if values are now at a level where export buyers are becoming interested.

BUTTER—CREAM—CHEESE

A good export butter demand is holding prices steady after the jumps of last week. A few shipments are being made to Montreal, although some of the creamerymen are of the opinion that most of the shipments have gone. Dairy Butter—Only a few odd pounds are being handled now, as the extra harvest hands are easily consuming the surplus; farmers are too busy to market. Cream—Prices in Alberta dropped back a cent on Monday, because creamerymen found the overhead was too large, as compared with the volume of cream handled. Saskatchewan is two cents below Alberta, while Manitoba is paying on an equal basis. Cheese—The export market is still continuing firm. Prices in Alberta unchanged.

EGGS—POULTRY

Eggs—Receipts are light and storage holdings are being drawn to satisfy the demand. Eastern markets receiving a good supply and values are holding firm. Are expecting price on better grade eggs to be advanced soon, providing the supply follows the general rule for this time of the year. Poultry—Heavier birds are coming fairly steadily on the market due to better prices offered. The broilers are not the attractive article they were.

POTATOES

Prices have dropped about $2.50 on the spreads, local dealers quoting $22.50 to $23.00. Supply handling the local trade, but a few shipments are arriving from B.C. to take care of those who prefer coast spuds to Albertas.

HAY

Receipts so far have been in keeping with those of the previous week but is expected that the heavy roads will delay supplies to a certain extent. Expect light receipts until after harvest.

WOOL

Prices unchanged and hardly any being handled as it has been cleaned up in most cases.

HIDES

Market easier; more skins being marketed in the country due to harvest consumption of meat. The prices are unchanged.

FURS

This market is not causing any stir. Sale at Montreal started Tuesday, but dealers do not seem interested. Local quotations unchanged.

BIRDS IN HARVEST-TIME

Speaking of harvest-time in the west brings to one's mind a picture of rolling fields of golden grain ripening in the sun and breeze or wide stretches of stubble thickly dotted with stooks—the produce of a bountiful soil and the farmers' industry.

This is nature's harvest-time, too, and the wild folks are taking their share of the good things. The crop of wild fruits have been particularly bountiful this year. Many of our birds are fond of fruit.

A friend of ours said just recently that he hadn't seen a robin for weeks, although several pairs had nested close to his home this summer.

The youngsters and women folk who were berry picking last month could tell us where the robins had vanished to. Just where the Saskatoon bushes were most heavily loaded and the finest and most juicy fruit hung, a flutttering of wings and a frightened 'took-took-took" told the berry pickers that our red-breasted friends were getting their fill.

Bluebirds are much in evidence just now, usually in family parties of half-a-dozen or so. The fall plumage of the males is much duller than the bright blue of spring time.

They are busy harvesting, too—quite a different crop from that of the robins, though. They haunt the open grassy spaces where grasshoppers are most in evidence and these insects form the chief item in their bill-of-fare.

The little flocks are gradually moving southward, not hurrying though as some of the migrants do but just drifting along and feeding as they go. As they move along other parties from north fill their places.

Blackbirds of several species have been bunching up for weeks past until now they form organized flocks. During the day-time they pay unwelcome attentions to the oat stooks and at night roost in the tall reeds along the shores of lakes and sloughs. They, too, are getting in shape for the long trip south.

What a wonderful thing bird migration is—like the ebb and flow of a world-encircling feathered tide.

Many of the warblers and other insect-eating birds have already passed through on their way south. Some of the tiny fragile mites nest quite far north and it is an interesting fact that their only experience of frost and snow is probably in their northern summer homes. They spend the winters in the tropics.

Most of the waders leave the north quite early in the fall. During the last wet spell, when the heavy moisture-laden clouds hung low, the clear whistling calls of waders could be heard passing overhead all through the nights. The glare from the street lights attracted them as they flew low over the buildings—too low in some cases, for some struck telephone wires and were instantly killed, to be found in the morning by some interested passer-by.

C.G.I.T. NOTES

A big pow-wow took place in the club room of the United Church on Tuesday evening. The reason was that the C.G.I.T. is back again in our midst and that night they re-organized. The room fairly rocked with laughter and song as the girls lived over again their vacations at camp and country. The old gang was there in force and many new members were gladly welcomed into the several groups.

At 8:15 they got down to the business of organization for the coming season's work, with Mrs. Backus in the chair. The members were divided into three groups, namely, juniors, intermediates and seniors.

The junior group, of which Miss Lois Humber is in charge, elected the following officers:—

President—Connie Norris.
First Vice—Helen Kitching.
Secretary—Dorothy Murray.
Treasurer—Lorraine Hogg.
Scribe—Lucille Burley.

Ola Dale's group, the Intermediates, elected:—

President—Edith Griffith.
First Vice—Florence Lindsay.
Secretary—Melba Hogg.
Treasurer—Nancy Fowler.
Scribe—Frances Goring.

The Dynamos (senior group) elected the following:—

President—Kathleen Wallace.
First Vice—Olive Code.
Second Vice—Margaret Lindsay.
Secretary—Margaret Connell.
Treasurer—Helen Warwick.

This group is very fortunate in having won the consent of Miss Smith, of the High School staff, to act as their leader, and the girls feel assured of a successful year.

Lillian Carscadden was elected Chief Scribe for the three groups.

Mrs. Backus has resigned as leader of the Senior group, but, happily, has consented to act as "Great Chief," or Supervisor of the whole organization in Red Deer. Mrs. Backus will aid the girls in carrying out their four-fold programme for the year. The members are indeed fortunate in having one of Mrs. Backus' culture and ability at their head, and she has made a personal friend of every girl in last year's group.

POLICE COURT CASES

J. Scott of Regina was fined $5.00 and costs by Police Magistrate Lawrence last week for creating a disturbance. P. Johnson was fined $10.00 and costs on an offence of the same character, also by Magistrate Lawrence.

The hospital board has arranged to have the road from the top of the hill to the hospital ploughed from the cinder roadway to the south line with a view to having this strip seeded down next spring and trees planted along it. The board has also arranged for changes in the hot water heating system so that a plentiful supply of hot water may be had at all times.

The outside improvements made this summer have greatly improved the appearance of the hospital grounds. The board and staff are especially grateful to Mr. and Mrs. John Quigg, who supplied thousands of bedding plants for beautifying the grounds and many cut flowers for the patients and staff.

The finances of the hospital are in the best condition they were ever in. All improvements have been paid for out of revenues and the secretary is confident of having a cash surplus at the end of the year.

HIS METHOD

"I'm looking for my ideal dog," said the lady in the canine-fancier's shop. "I'd like one with a head rather like a collie and a body after the style of an Irish terrier, only with longer hair and nice, distinct markings. Do you keep dogs like that?"

The dog fancier shook his head sadly. "No, ma'am," he said. "I drowns 'em."

BIRTHS

On September 11, at the Red Deer Hospital, to Mr. and Mrs. Titford of Rocky Mountain House, a son.

On September 10, at Hillsdown, to Mr. and Mrs. Chris Reay, a son.

At Mrs. Simons' nursing home, Red Deer, on September 11, to Mr. and Mrs. R. A. McAllister of Penhold, a daughter.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our dear sons, John Roderick Macdonald, who died at Shorncliffe, Kent, England, on Sept. 15, 1918; and Neil Kennedy Macdonald, died at Condor, Jan. 2, 1924; also our beloved son-in-law, William James Ellis, died June 22, 1924, at Col. Belcher Hospital, Calgary.

The golden gates were opened,
A loving voice said "Come,"
And with farewell unspoken
They quietly entered home.
It is not the tears at the moment shed
That tell how beloved are the souls that have fled;
But the silent tears through the long night wept
And the sad remembrance so fondly kept.

Inserted by their parents, Heatherdale, Condor.

C.N.R. TOURIST TRAFFIC SETS NEW RECORD

Reports presented at a recent meeting of passenger traffic officials of the western region, Canadian National Railways, held at Jasper Park Lodge, showed that passenger travel this year on both rail and steamship services of the system has surpassed all previous records. Despite the increased accommodation offered this season at Jasper Park Lodge, the quarters have been filled to capacity throughout the summer. This summer the Canadian National entered the Alaska trade with great success, while the development of the triangle tour, taking in Vancouver, Jasper Park and Prince Rupert, has brought more tourists into the northern Canadian Rockies than ever before. R. Creelman, passenger traffic manager of the region, announced that greater efforts than ever will be made to place Canada before intending tourists and to develop also traffic east and west within the dominion.

INSPECTING LAND HOLDINGS

Shaping plans for settlement next year of 325,000 acres of land in Alberta and Saskatchewan, Canadian directors of the British Dominion Land Settlement Corporation are now touring the west in company with Major-General the Hon. Sir Newton James Moore, K.C. M.G., former premier of West Australia. Sir Newton spent a few days in Winnipeg before starting on his tour, conferring with officers of the organization, which has been operating in the west since last spring, and has discussed plans for future settlement of land and immigration work. The land settlement scheme instituted last year by the organization is an ambitious project and has as its object the location of British settlers. Land to the extent of 325,000 acres, mostly in Alberta, has been acquired and a fair amount of settlement has been done this year. It is expected that plans for next year will be much more extensive than those already carried out. The personnel of the party which is now touring western Canada over Canadian National lines includes Sir Newton Moore, Robert McKay, W. P. Dutton, W. H. Carter and M. A. Brown.
